GEN. URIBE-URIBE SLAIN.

Colombian Statesman Dies from Wounds Inflicted by Workmen.

BOGOTA, Oct. 17.—Gen. Rafael Uribe-Uribe, member of the Colombian Senate and chief of the Liberal Party, who was attacked by two artisans on Thursday afternoon while on his way to the Senate, died yesterday. Wounds which were inflicted upon his head and neck with an axe used by the assailants proved fatal.

The assassins, both of whom are members of the Liberal Republican Workmen's Club, were arrested. The motive of the attack is not known, but failure to obtain positions said to have been promised to the men is believed to have instigated the act.

Great indignation has been aroused over the assault on Gen. Uribe-Uribe, but the city remains quiet. An imposing State funeral for the dead soldier and statesman was held today.

Gen. Rafael Uribe-Uribe, soldier, lawyer, and diplomat, had for years played a leading part in the affairs of his country. In the diplomatic field he had represented Colombia as Minister to Brazil, Chile, and Argentina, and had served on special missions to other of the Latin-American countries. He was also a delegate to the Pan-American Congress of American Republics, which met in Rio Janeiro.

During the uprising against the Marquoin Government Gen. Uribe Uribe was a leader of the insurrectionists. By profession he was a lawyer, and one of the leaders of the Bar of his country. Recently he was on the Advisory Committee that signed the treaty between the United States and Colombia designed to settle the Panama controversy.

The New York Times
Published: October 18, 1914
Copyright © The New York Times